SAN DIEGO -- San Diego is gearing up for the introduction of the Apple iPhone.

The phone, that will include an iPod and wi-fi capabilities, goes on sale Thursday. The phone is only sold through Apple stores and AT&T.

Lines are expected to be long at some retail stores. While it is generating excitement across the country, there are critics.

Some are complaining about phone coverage and the cost of the calling plan.

Kevin McAllister with San Diego Wireless suggests people wait before buying the phone. He says it's a good idea to allow the "bugs" to be worked out before shelling out nearly $500 for the phone.

At least one San Diego company is betting it will be a hit. The Internet business iPhoneWare.com is already offering iPhone accessories on the web.
